

ABSTRACT

A media contents capturing system for capturing media contents from a display of a multimedia player, The media contents capturing system includes a display area selection element, a transceiver, and a processor. The display area selection element selects an area of the display. The transceiver is in communication with the multimedia player to provide data commands for receiving media contents data of the area of display. The processor is configured to send and receive data commands and media contents data from said transceiver.